

Implementation of SDGs at the Faculty of Psychology

15. Life On Land

15.3. Supporting land ecosystems through action

15.3.3 Local biodiversity included in planning and development

Faculty of Psychology's canteen before renovation

Faculty of Psychology's canteen after renovation

Description:

The faculty makes every effort to include local biodiversity into all planning and development processes, including the construction of new facilities. For example, the remodeling of the faculty cafeteria modified the building and concept of the canteen to be more green and to offer more space to the biodiversity that lives on the land area, such as plants and animals. The new canteen has an outside seating area that allows biodiversity to thrive in its natural environment while also offering room for canteen guests to relax or dine.